

To ensure that you are working with a highly skilled surgeon, bring these questions with and interview the physician. Remember you are selecting the surgeon, not the other way around. You want to ask these questions to the surgeon, not a salesman. If you can't talk with the surgeon, it should be a red flag and you may want to find another surgeon.

1. How long have you been doing this procedure?
2. How many patients have you performed it on?
3. May I see pictures of your patients (not just ones in brochures)?
4. Are there any of your patients I can talk to?
5. Are there any of your patients I can see?
6. How many and what kind of procedures has the patient in the brochure had?
7. How long after surgery was the picture taken?
8. Do you perform follicular unit transplantation?
9. How many grafts are usually done in a session?

10. How many sessions will I need to achieve the look I want?
11. How much will the entire procedure cost?
12. Are there any preparation fees or other costs besides the per-graft charge?
13. Describe the procedure. What risks are associated with this kind of procedure?
14. Are you board certified and which board certified you?
15. What is your specialty? Is hair restoration the primary focus of their practice?
16. Outstanding results require a physician and a full staff who perform hair restoration surgery on a regular basis. Doing hair restoration as a sideline, along with other cosmetic procedures, may hinder their ability to do great work. What part of the surgery do you yourself perform and what part is performed by your technicians?
